2. Literature Review

2.1. The Concept of the Youth, Youth Union and Its Nature

The youth are a specific social-demographic group consisting of a considerable number of the population from 16 to 30 years old, associated with all classes, and ethnic groups [1]. This is the age of physical and mental development, orientating and growing up. When talking about the position and role of the young K. Marx and F. Engels affirmed: "the Youth is the source and vitality of the nation, and the working class is the body of each nation" [2]. "But anyhow, the enlightened part of the working class is very well aware that the future of their class and therefore the future of all humans, is entirely dependent on the education of the growing working generation [3]. Developing the arguments of K. Marx and F. Engels about the youth in new conditions, V. I. Lenin has considered the youth as "the fighting force of the revolution". As V. I. Lenin affirmed: "The real task of creating communist society is the youth's", [4] i.e. the future of communism belongs to the youth.

Inheriting the precious legacies of K. Marx, F. Engels, and V. I. Lenin, President Ho Chi Minh created Marxist arguments on the role of young people in society, on the task of educating the generation and about the Communist Youth Union in the specific conditions of the Vietnamese revolution. He earnestly called: "Poor Indochina! You will die if your young are old soon and not revived" [5]. He realized that "the youth are an important part of the nation" [6]. The organization of the "Vietnam Youth Revolutionary Union" to prepare for the establishment of the Communist Party of Vietnam and the establishment of the newspaper "Youth" has demonstrated that President Ho Chi Minh has a strategic vision of the youth. In the Testament, he wrote: "Our union members and young people are generally good. Everything is enthusiastically volunteered, not afraid of difficulties, with goodwill to progress. The Party needs to pay attention to educating them on revolutionary morality, training them to be the heirs to build socialism, both "morally" and "professionally". "Fostering the next revolutionary generation is a very important and necessary thing" [7]. The Communist Party of Vietnam affirms that young people have a critical role in the cause of national construction and defense. "Young people are a pioneering force in national construction and defense, one of the decisive factors in the success or failure of the cause of industrialization, national modernization, international integration and socialism building [8]. "The Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union is a reliable reserve team of the Party" [9].

The Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union is a socio-political organization of Vietnamese youth founded, led, and trained by the Communist Party of Vietnam and President Ho Chi Minh. The Youth Union includes advanced youth, striving for the Party's purpose, ideals of national independence associated with socialism, rich people, strong country, democracy, justice, and civilization [10]. The Youth Union is a political-social organization, so this union is political and popular. Politically, the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union was founded, led, and trained by the Vietnamese Communist Party and President Ho Chi Minh. Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union used the Party's ideal purpose as its ideal purpose, which is national independence associated with socialism. At the 4th International Congress of Communist Youth in July 1924, Nguyen Ai Quoc drafted a discussion on colonial youth, the thesis affirmed: "Quickly forming youth organizations and building youth unions in colonial countries" [11]. In a letter to the Executive Committee of the Communist Party of Indochina, Nguyen Ai Quoc proposed: "Firstly, the youth organization and the worker union must be unified and those organizations must have their own independent activities" [12].

At the first meeting of the Party Central Committee (October 1930), the Conference passed: "The resolution on the Indochina situation and the necessary tasks of the Party". Especially the meeting passed the "Resolution on the Communist Youth Campaign". The resolution stated: "The Party must immediately implement the Resolution of the International Communist Youth Union and help the Union be independent". "The Communist Party needs to work with the youth masses, and must lead the youth masses". To do so, you can only organize a group of young people. "The central committee, Party committees, provinces, cities, and special commissars have to send many young comrades in charge of organizing the Youth Union and helping the Youth Union to be independent" [13].

The 2nd Party Central Committee Meeting took place in Saigon from March 20 to 26, 1931, chaired by General Secretary Tran Phu. The conference spent a lot of time discussing the work of Party building and building the Youth Union. The conference set out the necessary tasks that the Party must do, including the quick establishment of the Youth Union organization. "it is necessary to organize to the Youth Union, and the Party needs to give up the indifferent attitude towards that issue. Immediately the local Party committees have to quickly organize the members of the Union, the organization cell, and a news agency about the Youth Union's movement and have to direct the newly established branches of the Youth Union to start working among the youth mass. In a short time to come, the local party cells need to found the youth union at the grassroots level" [14]. The Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union underwent 7 renaming times according to its historic mission towards the nation: From 1931 to 1936: The Indochinese Communist Youth Union; From 1937 to 1939: Indochinese Democratic Youth Union; From 11/1939 to 1941: Indochinese Anti- Imperialist Youth Union; From 5/1941 - 1956: Vietnamese Youth Union for National Salvation; From October 25, 1956, to 1970: Vietnamese Youth Union; From 2/1970 to 11/1976: Ho Chi Minh Youth Union of Labor; From 12/1976 to present: Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union. By the masses, young people are a huge force in society, always accounting for an average of about one-third of the population, so the proportion of young people present in all strata of society is very large. However, it must be affirmed that young people have an important position and role in all fields of economy, politics, security, and defense. Wherever there are young people, there is political orientation, helping, consulting, accompanying the youth of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union; Vietnamese Youth Association, Vietnamese Student Association [15]. The social characteristics of the Youth Union are evident in the activities of the Youth Union, and the Youth's movement. These activities not only spread to union members but also affected young people who were unable to become members. The mass characteristics are also reflected in the fact that the Youth Union is a collective member of the Vietnamese Youth Association, playing a critical role and political orientation for the Association's activities. The Youth Union has a coordinated relationship with socio-political organizations, social and professional organizations to create resources, conditions and contribute to the activities.
